(see reverse side for directions)

Dear Green Industry Professional:

Have your customers been requesting native plants in the work you do for them? Many savvy home gardeners are aware that native plants may be well adapted to the conditions in their landscape and are seeking them out.

If you'd like to tune up your knowledge of natives, this class may be just what you're looking for! This two-day class concentrates on trees, shrubs and herbaceous plants considered native to southeastern Pennsylvania, and will give practical information of how you can use these plants in the landscape.

- Emphasis will be on plants that are readily available in the nursery trade.
- Add some new plants to the palate you offer your customers.

Join us for two informative days which will combine classroom time and hands-on workshops. No prior study of native plants is required.

The instructor is Dr. David Sanford, Professor of Horticulture, Penn State University. The cost is $70 which includes lunches and handouts. Registration deadline is September 1, 2009.
